POLITICS, COMMUNICATION AND DEMOCRATIC CHANGE

Established in the context of Romania's democratic transition after 1989, the Political Science specialization at the University of Oradea has accompanied three decades of political, institutional and societal transformation. Throughout this period, the Department has contributed to the development of academic reflection on democracy, European integration, public communication, governance and civic participation, while training generations of professionals active in public administration, politics, media and civil society.

To mark this anniversary, the Department of Political Science and Communication Sciences invites contributions for a Special Issue of the Journal of Identity and Migration Studies:

1. New Research Agendas in Political Science.
2. The Academic as a Public and Civic Actor.
